OVERVIEW

Education in Chicago and Illinois is in the midst of a significant transformation. Schools and teachers are experimenting with innovative, student-oriented programs that encourage the development of independent, critical thinking, strong personal values and an enhanced understanding of science, math, literature, art, the social sciences and cultural diversity. These are not theoretical initiatives but rather concrete programs that bring into play all of the natural curiosity, creativity, energy, and initiative of young people. In the process, they encourage self-esteem, personal and social well-being, and a deepened understanding of our multicultural world.

To encourage and support these initiatives, the JCCC Foundation is offering Student Development and Achievement Grants for the 2020-2021 school year.

The mission of this grant program is to support projects that work with students to enhance learning and increase learning opportunities both inside and outside of school. Preference will be shown for innovative and collaborative programs and projects that encourage personal initiative, development of adult values, development of higher-order thinking skills, and real-life problem solving.
Program goals and objectives should support the current Illinois Learning Standards\(^1\) for pre-school, elementary and secondary students in one or more of the following subject areas: Early Learning and Development, English/Language Arts, English Language Development and Early English (for English Learners), fine arts, mathematics, physical development and health, science, social sciences, social/emotional learning, and world languages.

The JCCC Foundation’s aim is to encourage the broadest range of activities and projects. Any initiative that promises it will have direct impact on students will be considered.

Organizations may wish to seek grants for these purposes:
- To fund projects that demonstrate the educational and student development value of a specific course of study
- To support demonstration projects that illustrate the value of classroom learning in the context of real-life situations
- To encourage greater family participation in school and community activities
- To expand the use of technology for teaching and learning

With these grants, the Chamber and the JCCC Foundation declare their intention to support innovative programs that convert educational theory to concrete actions that foster student development and achievement.

PROJECT CONSIDERATIONS

Proposals must be for a new or existing project. The JCCC Foundation will not consider requests for general personnel (salary, fringe and health benefits), operating, or occupancy expenses. These include but are not limited to telephone expenses, rent, utilities, maintenance, background checks, audit or fiscal administration, and custodial services. Projects may involve one or more teachers, classrooms, grades, schools or districts, affiliated clubs, social service agencies or fine/cultural arts organizations. Special consideration will be given to innovative projects that involve parents, the community, or a collaboration of one or more schools/organizations.

Projects may take the form of, but are not limited to, one or more of the following:
- Innovative classroom practices, projects or demonstrations
- Parent/school partnerships
- Business/school partnerships
- Collaborative educational initiatives between the organization and other service providers.
- Projects may be new or continuing and in need of additional funds.
